DEAR READERS,

Welcome aboard SpiceJet! The festive season is here! May the celebrations and festivities of Navratri, Durga Puja and Dussehra bring happiness and prosperity to you and your loved ones. These festivals have a special significance as they symbolise the triumph of good over evil and are a harbinger of the achievements that await us for our efforts.

As demand for festive travel picks up starting this month, SpiceJet looks forward to serving to the maximum. We have added new routes and flights to airports across the country to cater to the increased demand for seats during the festive season. Our capacity to serve more passengers received a timely boost as deliveries of ten Boeing 737 aircraft have commenced. Ten grounded aircraft will also re-join our fleet as we look forward to carrying a record number of passengers during the festive season.

India's emergence as an important aviation hub continues as the civil aviation industry maintains a rapid growth trajectory. As India's favourite airline and one of the largest regional players, we continue to play an important role in the growth of aviation in the country. We continue to enjoy one of the highest passenger load factors (occupancy) and with new routes and flights being added, our contribution towards making flying more accessible and to the growth of the sector will continue.

As India continues to shine on various global platforms, join me in congratulating the U-16 team on winning the SAFF U16 Championship of men's football. The team emerged victorious in a high-octane final with a fine display of tactical prowess and control. That the team did not concede a single goal during the entire tournament speaks volumes about the talent and skill of this young team.

Our heartfelt congratulations to Team India on winning the Asia Cup. Thank you for the wonderful display of sportsmanship and remarkable skill throughout the tournament. The collective hopes and dreams of a billion citizens hinge on the Indian contingent at the upcoming ICC Cricket World Cup. I join the nation in wishing the team all the very best. Let us support, cheer and enjoy the wonderful game.

Jai Hind!

To raise awareness about the Swachh Bharat Mission, we invite all passengers to join us in an in-flight cleanliness pledge inspired by Mahatma Gandhi. Our crew will be coming in the cabin to collect waste; kindly hand it over to them. In our collective effort to build a clean and developed India, let's commit to dedicating 100 hours per year (equivalent to two hours per week) to voluntary cleanliness initiatives. Say no to littering and promote cleanliness in your family, community, and workplace. Please be environmentally conscious and reduce the use of single-use plastic items during your flight. Let's work together to maintain a clean cabin environment and minimise litter.

We encourage you to share your Shramdaan for Swachhata stories and cleanliness experiences on social media. Please tag @swachhbharat and use the #SwachhBharat hashtag.

Together, we can make a meaningful contribution to a cleaner and more sustainable India.

TAMIL NADU

This wedding season, we bring you breathtaking destinations you can choose from to celebrate your big day. We start with Mamallapuram, an ideal location for a traditional wedding

Image: althea

Just a couple of hours from Chennai, by the Bay of Bengal, stands Mahabalipuram or Mamallapuram with its ancient rock-cut temples. A UNESCO World Heritage Site, the grand complex with giant open-air reliefs and the majestic Shore Temple has emerged as a popular pre-wedding photography destination, while the resorts along the coast host grand marriage events. "From sea-facing farmhouses for close-knit weddings to glamorous five-star resorts, Mahabalipuram offers a variety of options," says a Chennai-based marriage planner, adding, "it's perfect for those looking for a seaside wedding with stunning cultural references." Its easy connectivity to the Chennai airport is another advantage. Nearby is Dakshinachitra, an elegant building that houses a museum of art and architecture, which makes for an interesting backdrop.

For your wedding feast, you can offer a scrumptious full-course South Indian sit-down meal served on a banana leaf for a taste of the region's unique traditions.

DON'T MISS

Image: althea

The complex is an iconic example of Southern Indian temple architecture. Its grand backdrop is perfect for a pre-wedding shoot.

MUST SEE

While you are there, do explore popular attractions like the open-air relief called the "Descent of the Ganges" and "Krishna's Butterball", a wonder that defies the laws of gravity. It does not fall or move.

EAT & SHOP

Fresh seafood dishes can be added to a wedding menu and local stone and seashell artefacts can be used in the decor.

The nearest well-connected airport is Chennai. SpiceJet connects direct and one-stop flights to Chennai from Colombo*, Bagdogra, Pune, Ahmedabad, Khajuraho, Goa and many more destinations in India. Book now at www.spicejet.com.

Festive Nostalgia

Festivals are about bonding with family and friends and celebrating with your loved ones. With the festival season upon us, we speak to a few celebrities about their festive memories

TEXT: NAMITA KUMAR

Every autumn, as the rain clouds clear and there is a nip in the air, the festive fervour grips the country. The autumnal festive season in India, characterised by bustling crowds, illuminated streets, and the scent of incense, holds a unique significance for everyone. However, there is a common emotion shared by those who live far from their loved ones and hometowns – a profound sense of nostalgia and longing for home. This feeling is so powerful that not even a million distractions can fill the void. Whether it's visiting Durga Puja pandals, enjoying the festivities of a Dussehra mela, lighting diyas during Diwali, or savouring thekua (a sweet dish) during Chhath, these festive days bring back memories of cherished moments spent with friends and family!

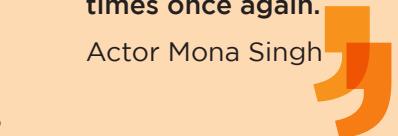

During these festivals, neighbourhoods and houses are beautifully decorated, and entire communities come together to celebrate. Beneath the surface of each of these festivals lie the uncomplicated pleasures and rituals that tie us to our origins, faith, and homes. Recalls actor Daisy Shah, who has thrilling memories of Navratri in Mumbai, "The best part of Navratri would be the garba that we used to play. I used to love getting dressed up in ethnic wear and dancing the nights away with friends." Another actor who misses her garba nights is Shraddha Kapoor, who has often spoken about sneaking out of home during Navratri with friends.

For actor Mona Singh, who has celebrated Dussehra and Diwali in all corners of India due to her father's life as an Army man, festivals mean shopping. "When I was young, we would shop for new clothing and decor from

"As a child, I used to love gorging on fried savouries and sweets during Diwali. I would love to rewind to those times once again."

Actor Mona Singh

wherever my father was posted at that time. That taught me the importance of buying local and supporting artisans. Even today, I buy only handmade earthen diyas and other décor items. Not only do they look good but also remind me of the countless festivals spent in remote parts of the country with my family," says Singh.

Image: uptourism

"My fondest Durga Pujo memories are from my childhood, when we used to celebrate with the entire family at my grandfather's house near Dum Dum. While the rituals were important, playing with cousins and feasting mattered a lot to us!"

Actor
Prosenjit Chatterjee

No Indian festival is complete without food. Durga Puja too is associated with a variety of dishes. Interestingly, there are many recipes and methods of preparing these dishes, unique to every family or neighbourhood. In essence, the aroma of the food is a form of returning home, even if only in your thoughts.

For casting director and Bollywood actor Abhishek Banerjee, Durga Puja memories from his growing up days are strongly associated with food — be it the delicious Kolkata street food or the divine bhog offered to Goddess Durga. For him, bhog is sacrosanct. Recalling one of his fondest Durga Puja memories from Mumbai, he says, "I saw director Anurag Basu the very first time at a pujo mandap serving bhog. It was important for me to talk to him about my career, but I didn't. I couldn't have interrupted a bhog service." Banerjee also swears by the delicious meals every Bengali loves to feast on after the day's rituals are over, especially Moghrai porotha (a deep fried paratha with a filling of minced meat).

"There is something special about the way bhog is cooked. The dishes are simple. Yet, when they are offered to Maa Durga and distributed among devotees, they take on a special aroma and flavour. Even the best chefs can't match the taste of bhog.

Actor Abhishek Banerjee

From the art of rangoli making (colourful patterns to decorate homes) to participating in community Ramlila shows (traditional theatre that showcases the epic Ramayana), Indian festivals and art forms are often interlinked. Actor Shah Rukh Khan has very famously spoken about his early days in Delhi, where during a Ramlila act, he realised he had it in him to explore the vocation. "I used to be cast as a monkey with a long tail in the local Ramlila show. I would jump around and confidently interact with the audience. Those shows helped me lose the fear of crowds," the actor has said.

For decades, actors have come together to put up prestigious Ramlila

October this year marks the celebration of several major festivals in India, including Durga Puja, Navratri, and Dussehra

"For me, Diwali and Dussehra mean fun, food and brand new clothes. If you are a Punjabi, all this is a must. My childhood was spent in Delhi. I burst crackers only for shagun. I am concerned about the environment. I also want my children to learn all about it and breathe in fresh air."

Indian television presenter Manish Paul performances across the country. Some of the most popular ones are held in Varanasi and Delhi. Ramlila acts held during Dussehra have been the training ground for many now-established actors. Television star Rohitashv Gour, who plays Manmohan Tiwari in the popular television show Bhabhi Ji Ghar Par Hai, says, "I started my career as an actor from Ramlila in the small town of Kalka, where I grew up. I was a teenager and I used to be cast in supporting roles but the rehearsals, the style of dialogue delivery and facing the audience taught me a lot. Those shows gave me the first taste of theatre!"

Notably, Indian festivals encompass numerous customs that require the participation of the entire family and close relatives, whether it's cleaning and decorating the house, preparing prasad (offerings to deities), or helping with the puja. Reflecting on his memories of Chhath, actor Pankaj Tripathi reminisces about the days spent at his home in Belsand village of Gopalganj district, Bihar. "Be it Jitiya, Teej or Chhath, every festival of Bihar is special. Chhath is a mahaparv [biggest festival] for me, and I always emphasise how it celebrates nature. It is celebrated over several days and the first three days are very special - Nahay Khay, Kharna and Sandhya Aragh. Even today, I insist on making thekua at home. As a boy, I recall my mom fasting and the festival being extremely pure and pristine. The village would gather around River Gandak for the arghya [prayers to Sun God]," he recalls. Chhath is deemed one of the most eco-friendly festivals by environmentalists. From the prasad to the offerings, it involves the use of seasonal fruits, vegetables

"For me, Chhath is incomplete without the entire family coming together."

Actor Sanjay Mishra

"I love to celebrate Chhath at my village with the rest of my family and try to return home every year with my wife and daughter. I still carry the tokra [basket] of arghya offerings on my head. Time is a small sacrifice to make if I get to spend some moments of joy at home."

Actor

and cereals. Devotees go for holy bathing and observe a fast during this festival. Chhath puja is dedicated to the Sun God.

Tripathi adds: "Every year, I make sure that I spend time with my wife and child at my hometown during Chhath. I have many memories from childhood associated with this festival. I love the rituals and observe them with utmost fervour and enthusiasm. Spending a few moments of joy at home is priceless. Due to work commitments, if I can't go home on Chhath, I celebrate it in Mumbai with my family. Another festival I have very fond memories of is Durga Puja. This festival was also celebrated with great enthusiasm in Patna during my growing-up days."

GUJARAT

AHMEDABAD

Map not to scale

Come autumn and Ahmedabad decks up for Navratri, a vivacious festival that lasts for nine days. In Gujarat, Navratri is not just about religious devotion but also revelry, in which the entire community takes part. People throng the streets in traditional clothes to attend various garba and dandiya programmes at different venues in Ahmedabad. This is the best time to visit the city as it can be seen at its liveliest and colourful best.

India's first UNESCO-listed World Heritage City, Ahmedabad has an incredible diversity of architecture, from huge mosques to magnificent monuments. The city, built on the ancient site of Ashaval and Karnavati, was founded in 1411 AD by Sultan Ahmed Shah. It is home to many monuments like Jhulta Minara and Amritvarshini Stepwell. The city's heritage can be further witnessed in traditional residential clusters called 'pols' exhibiting remarkable urban planning with water-harvesting and community activities. The pols are micro-neighbourhoods with houses, public areas and bird-feeding structures called chabutras. Many of the pols have mansions called havelis featuring exquisite wooden facades with artistic wood carvings on their

What to eat

When in the city, try street food like navtad samosas (tiny crispy triangles made of refined flour called pattis and stuffed with lentil or potatoes), found best in the Gheekanta market. They are known to have been introduced in Ahmedabad in the 1950s.

During Navratri, relish special thalis anywhere in Ahmedabad. The flavourful vegetarian dishes like alo ke pakode, shakarkandi chaat, lauki ki subzi, samak ke chawal, kuttu poori, saboodana papad, etc., are served even late at night.

At Sindhi Market and its neighbouring Revdi Bazar, you will find Sindhi stalls selling sanna pakoras, crispy double-fried fritters made with chickpeas and gram flour.

Visit Azad, a popular eatery that dates back to 1947, to relish dishes like dal pakwan. For dessert, buy Karachi halwa and malai barfi in the area.

balconies, brackets and pillars, and fine stucco work. While wandering around the pols, you can see temples and Jain shrines with beautiful vegetable-colour dyed walls and corbelled domes.

Walk down the pols to the historic market square called Manek Chowk, where the bullion and jewellery markets thrive. Here, you can see the grand Jama (Jumma) Masjid, built around the 15th century. The mosque has a large marble-paved courtyard with a pool in the centre and an enclosed arcaded gallery on three sides with fine calligraphy. The façade has some fine lattice windows flanking the arches.

BUSTLING MARKETS

Best Time to Visit: October to February is an ideal time to explore Ahmedabad

Located close to this mosque, the Teen Darwaja is a triple archway with intricately decorated walls on the piers between the arches. From here, you can walk through Manek Chowk to Badshah-no-Hajiro, the tomb of Ahmed Shah and his queen's tomb known as Rani-na-Hazira. Once the markets open, you can shop for clothes to wear for Navratri events. The traditional attire of women for garba is called chaniya-choli-odhni. The chaniya, also called lehenga or ghagra, is a heavily gathered drawstring skirt. The choli is a brightly coloured blouse and the odhni is a scarf or a stole. Dhalgarwad and Ratanpole are the main areas to shop for traditional clothes and silver jewellery.

Male dancers wear embroidered garments called kediya (kediyu) that are worn over a colourful kurta, teamed with brightly coloured dhoti or pyjamas and often accompanied by colourful turbans and embroidered footwear called mojdis. As you walk down the markets, you can see costumes and ornaments hung on shop fronts for sale. Ramakda Market is a well-known hub for buying dandiya sticks and accessories. The evening market at Law Garden is famous for chaniya-choli, jewellery and trinkets.

People come out on the street squares to worship Goddess Amba and dance – this is called Sheri Garba. For grand Navratri celebrations, head to the west bank of River Sabarmati. By night, the city is a blaze of colours with dancers in their ethnic attire dotting the streets and lanes. Vibrant events are held at clubs, schools, colleges and party lawns.

THUMPING CADENCE

The rhythm of garba and dandiya raas reverberates across Ahmedabad during Navratri, as people groove to peppy numbers belted by celebrated musicians. Large-scale events are held at multiple venues across the city. Rajpath Club, Karnavati Club and Karnavati University organise popular celebrations attended by youngsters. On the other hand, smaller and more intimate programmes are held in residential colonies. Traditionally, the dances are centred around a mandvi, which is a structure made for holding diyas (wick-lamps).

An intrinsic part of these garba nights is also the food. Ahmedabad's heritage lies in its antique restaurants as well. Chandravilas is one such place that was started as a small tea cart around 1900 and is said to have launched the first-ever Gujarati thali. This restaurant was once frequented by freedom fighters and is a must-visit in Ahmedabad for celebrities and tourists. It is famous for a sumptuous breakfast of fafda (chickpea flour fritters), jalebi, a papaya relish called cheen (papaya sambharo), and chutneys. Das Khaman is an establishment dating back to 1922, famous for its farsan (snacks). Dal kachoris and batata vadas are also popular, and in the pols you can dig into kela vada and banana chips.

From a small-town boy raised in the hinterlands of Punjab to a globally recognised artist, Amritpal Singh Dhillon has come a long way. His life has been captured in a recent documentary, AP Dhillon: First of A Kind, for the OTT platform. His remarkable story is the stuff that riveting film narratives are made of — a desi immigrant boy leaves his home and family to travel to a foreign land to fulfil his dreams.

"My focus never shifted from music inspite of many hardships throughout my journey"

The Brown Munde singer, while describing his journey, says, "Long, laborious, full of learning and a lot of fun! I was at a state when no one wanted to work with me. And that is when I decided to be fully independent. It may have taken a while, but it was really worth it!"

Underlining how important staying passionate was to his journey from Punjab to Canada, and now as an international celebrity, AP says, "All of us enjoy what we do. And we want to continue doing it better and better. From jamming in cold rooms to experimenting with the essence of the folk and other music we grew up listening to, the challenges and inspirations have been many. But this is what I always wanted to do and I was stubborn about it!"

Focus Pays

Familial resistance was naturally there but young AP was unfazed. "My dadi would always encourage me, even singing to me at times. My parents thought she was just an indulgent grandparent. Of course I was told to choose a good course, finish studies and find a stable job. But then, I am also glad for getting the opportunity to move abroad where I could juggle music and earning a living," he recalls, adding, "I knew what I had to do. That focus never shifted." This was despite several hardships. "Working multiple shifts, being denied a room in a hotel because I did not have a credit card, surviving on eggs and bread for days - all of that was so worth it!" says AP. A lot of these details were revealed to the world via the recent documentary, and AP says it probably is the best way to know him.

The Man Behind the Enigma

There wasn't much known about AP Dhillon and the documentary is a fly-on-the-wall account of his life and times. "I'll be honest. I am not much of a talker. I am learning now. And when they first started shooting the documentary, and the camera was following us everywhere, I was rather irritated with how obstructive it was getting. But then, I think it is the best way. Rather than talking about myself, I would much rather have people see who I am," confesses AP.

The otherwise shy singer thrives on the adulation of fans, as the documentary on his life and journey reveals. "It was such a high when we did our first show. In the midst of our performance, whilst there was no nervousness, I actually fumbled for a second with a lyric because I

Rapid Fire

An enigma since he made a mark in the global Punjabi music scene, and changed its fabric, here are a few lesser known details about him.

Thoughts on playback for Bollywood- I am not averse to it, but it will have to make sense in the larger picture. I love making music and if that is contributing to a film, why not?

Your inspiration- Anything and everything! Like with Ma Belle, it was just a mood I was in. It wasn't melancholy or anything. Yes, there are times when we face artistic blocks. Then I wait patiently for the inspiration to come organically. I don't like forcing it.

Favourite genre of music- Literally anything. Perhaps, I won't listen to metal. But mostly folk or jazz.

If not a musician/singer, then what? I'd rather be dead!

A place that inspires you- The rural countryside - mostly Punjab.

A place on the travel bucket list- Kashmir, Ladakh and Andamans in India. I also want to travel to the eastern European regions.

was so overwhelmed with the crowd. It was for a split second, I think. But the crowd knew every single verse! If this is not blessed, I don't know what is," says AP.

The one question that everybody is curious about, in the midst of speculation, is his relationship status. When asked, AP declares with conviction: "I am definitely single!" Talking about his mates, the singer adds with a laugh, "We are married to the game." When pressed further, AP shrugs, hinting that he is indeed single.

It's the '90s ONCE MORE

From Barbie to Archie, characters from the past are ruling our present

TEXT: SHRUTI KOTHARI TOMAR

Greta Gerwig's recent film Barbie has broken all records. Within weeks of being released, the film made an astonishing USD 1 billion at the global box office. While most experts credit its success to Gerwig's complex emotional and entertaining treatment of the cross-generational icon, many believe the story's nostalgia appealed to moviegoers. Interestingly, it is not just Gerwig who is taking us on a trip down memory lane. While Barbie is enjoying the limelight, in the pipeline are movies based on Archie Comics and Shaktimaan, taking us back to the era when reading was still a popular pastime, and characters from comic books were our best friends.

We are seeing strong inspiration from the past, especially the '90s, all around us – from fashion, film, books to movies and OTT series. Says Heena Singhal, author (Songs of the Reed), painter and children's book illustrator, "They say there is always a child within us no matter how far along on this journey of life we move. And we've had a childhood devoid of the Internet. With these glimpses of nostalgia that pop up around us, we revisit the old days we had spent in the colourful and dreamy pages of comic books and movies that gave us lifelong superheroes we admire to date."

We've been engulfed by this nostalgia for a while now. Hollywood rang in success after success with the movie adaptation of the superhero Spider-Man that took the childhood reminiscence of the netted hero and brought him alive on the silver screen, making it a hit that was not witnessed before in the cinemas. Netflix took the tale of the '90s cult show, The Addams Family, to stupendous success as Wednesday in late 2022; The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air, a sitcom from the '90s, made a comeback last year, and That '70s Show has inspired That '90s Show in a nostalgic derivative for fans.

Research says the uncertain times of the pandemic revived our longing for the past and gave rise to the popularity of nostalgia stories. And that is continuing. The '90s generation has come of age and as this decade closes in on us, we're putting on our rose-tinted glasses and holding on to the '90s aesthetics and popular trends dearly while expressing it through films, books and TV. Even in fashion, from dungarees to Birkenstocks and high-waisted flared trousers, our love for the '90s is serious and here to stay.

Closer home, The Archies ensemble is all set to come alive on our screens and director par excellence, Zoya Akhtar, who's given the Indian film industry popular movies like Zindagi Na Milegi Dobara, Dil Dhadakne Do

Archie Comics spoke about things we could relate to, from heartbreaks to friendships, and just fitting in and Gully Boy, is directing the new-age Riverdale teens in this live-action flick. It is set in a utopian world in the salubrious climes of Ooty, where dancing, singing, biking and picnicking warrant no occasion, and the solitary dark cloud appears to be Archie's hopeless chase of both scholarly Betty and the seemingly inaccessible Veronica.

Why this walk down memory lane to revisit our favourite characters, our beloved stories, and the vibes of a decade that shaped us? Does it lend a sense of home and belonging in the highly unpredictable times we live in and/or have lived through? Psychologist Shivmpu Ahuja explains, "Nostalgia and throwbacks are often sharper in our collective memories during intermediate periods of enormous paradigm shifts and societal or cultural alterations. It keeps our sense of nostalgia in good health."

Talking about The Archies, Aparna Gopalakrishnan, proprietor and illustrator, Doodle Soup by Aparna, recalls, "The comic series has been such a big part of every

'90s kid's childhood — buying that one comic book at the train station or exchanging your precious book for another from a friend or if you got really lucky, receiving a hand-me-down collection from a cousin who had outgrown them. The storytelling was fabulous! There was such a diverse mix of characters, and you could relate to most of them at one point or the other. The style of illustration was so unique, with just the right amount of detail and pops of colour. More than anything, Archie Comics spoke about things we were going through; young love, heartbreaks, friendships and just fitting in. Life is certainly different now, so it'll be interesting to see it evolve from the yellowed pages of a comic book to a screen!"

Last year, Excel Entertainment joined hands with Diamond Toons, the publishers of Chacha Chaudhary and Sabu, to feature characters from the Katrina Kaif-starrer Phone Bhoot in the Chacha Chaudhary comic series. Internationally, Mattel is planning to bring Barney and Hot Wheels to the big screen. It looks like nostalgia is here to stay and could just be the thing that drives us into the future.

My Town

In our series, in which we travel to various Indian cities with a SpiceJet family member, this time, Rajat Gulati, Cabin Crew (Delhi), takes us around his hometown

Are you originally from Lucknow?

Yes, I am from Lucknow, the 'City of Nawabs'. It flourished under the Nawab of Awadh.

What is the quality of life here like?

Lucknow is regarded as a culturally rich city, because of its heritage, art, music, and food. It is well known for its beautiful embroidery work Chikankari. The city is blessed with a good number of architectural wonders that will mesmerise you with grace and elegance. It is also popular for its lush green gardens.

What is the night scene here like?

Among many places to visit in Lucknow at night, one of my favourites is Hazratganj market. It's similar to a spot that is a legendary place of the British times and looks like a late-night movie show. Also, in Subhash Marg, there is a place that sells a variety of paans (betel leaves) and is a huge attraction, especially at night. In Gomti Nagar, Spice Caves has the best nightlife, and it is open after midnight and the most charming element of this bar is a cave-like vibe and broadcast of live occasions, and I always make sure to take my family there whenever I visit Lucknow.

What is the best thing that you like about the place?

Lucknow has established itself as a land of tehzeeb, grand architecture, beautiful gardens, delectable cuisine, and more. The best thing for me here is its culinary delights such as kebabs, biryani, nahari kulchas, and sweet delicacies like shahi tukda and makhan malai. The nawabs of Awadh had a significant influence on the development of this royal gastronomy, making Lucknow a foodie's paradise.

As compared to other big cities, what different lifestyle does Lucknow have to offer?

Lucknow is a historically important city and for many centuries it was the heart of North Indian culture. Life in Lucknow is slow-paced and relaxed. Lucknow has a unique charm and character that attract people who are looking for a peaceful lifestyle, rich cultural heritage, affordable cost of living and delicious food.

Which are the best places to hang out in Lucknow?

The moment you enter the city, it will gladly take your hand and show you its past and present. It is dotted with Mughal and British Raj-era structures and tombs like the Residency, Bara Imambara, Rumi Darwaza, and Jama Masjid. Visiting Bhool Bhulaiya is a must-do when in Lucknow. Even the streets of Lucknow are a foodie's paradise; at every 100 m there is a different stall, a different aroma, and a secret recipe that will blow your mind.

What attractions in Lucknow would you recommend to a tourist?

Lucknow is renowned for its historical monuments. Places like Moti Mahal Palace, popularly known as Pearl Palace is a great birdwatching spot. Another place I would like to suggest is Ramakrishna Math, a monastery established in Nirala Nagar. It is an all-monk institution dedicated to Sri Ramakrishna. Some other places are Shahi Baoli, Janeshwar Mishra Park and Husainabad Clock Tower etc.

How did you discover the eateries?

Discovering different local cuisines as a foodie has always been my forte, leading me to this place. The name Tunday Kababi itself carries an intriguing story behind it. Legend has it that Haji Murad Ali, the kebab maker and the founder of the shop, had only one working arm. However, his disability did not hinder his passion for cooking.

Why do you like the place so much?

The kebabs made here are prepared using a closely guarded secret family recipe, with the women of the family crafting a special masala that incorporates a total of 160 different spices. The owner employed individuals who could skillfully pound the meat with just one hand, transforming it into a fine paste that would effortlessly melt in one's mouth, releasing the flavours of the intricate masalas.

Describe your favourite dish.

Renowned for its unique flavour and texture, this place makes kebabs with finely minced meat along with the marination of a mixture of spices and shallow fried on a hot griddle. The first bite will make you fall in love with it especially when the soft, delicious kebab melts in your mouth.

What other places would you recommend near Lucknow?

Ayodhya is one of the best places to visit near Lucknow. It is a spiritual centre situated by River Sarju. If peace is what you seek, then you should surely pay a visit to the Ananda Bodhi Tree and Vipassana Meditation Centre.

What are the people here like?

The people of Lucknow are known for their hospitality, values, and etiquette also known as tehzeeb. People mix sophistication with warmth and courtesy added with generous doses of love to give you the politest language and lifestyle. People here have their own refined style of doing each and everything. The lifestyle in Lucknow is one of a kind and the place still dwells in its old-world charm.

ARE YOU A FOODIE? WHICH IS YOUR FAVOURITE EATING PLACE IN LUCKNOW?

Food might be just a word for others but an emotion for me. A culinary trip to Lucknow is something that food connoisseurs long for. Places like Tunday Kababi, Idris Biryani, Rahim's, etc, are just some places I make sure to visit whenever I go home.
